Bruegel's mission

BRUEGEL AIMS TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE QUALITY OF ECONOMIC POLICYMAKING IN EUROPE THROUGH OPEN, FACT-BASED AND POLICY-RELEVANT RESEARCH, ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION.

Bruegel is defined by five key features:

Outward-oriented focus. Bruegel aims to contribute to a better understanding of the economic challenges and responsibilities facing Europe in the context of globalisation.

Evidence-based policy recommendations. Bruegel does not stand for any particular policy doctrine. Its research draws on state-of-the-art analysis to assess economic transformations, discuss policy options and propose recommendations – while always keeping an eye on their practical feasibility.

Demand-driven questions, independent answers. Bruegel's Research Programme is set by the Board, which represents the diversity of Bruegel's stakeholders. Decisions on new research projects follow extensive discussions with Bruegel's members. Once a research topic is chosen, however, research and publications are fully independent. All publications are released under the signature of their author(s), and Bruegel itself abstains from taking any policy positions.

Linking government, research, business and civil society. Bruegel provides a forum for informed policy discussions between individuals from diverse backgrounds. Bruegel also aims to cooperate with leading European and international research institutions on specific research projects.

European reach. Bruegel addresses topics for which policy responsibility rests with individual states, the European Union, or international organisations. It is developing its presence in national debates across Europe, as well as Brussels and international discussion forums.

Chairman's message

“BRUEGEL IS CONSOLIDATING ITS ROLE AS A SKILLED AND TRUSTED PARTICIPANT IN EUROPEAN ECONOMIC POLICYMAKING”

Last year I introduced this message by noting that the crisis would be marked not only by inherently difficult policy choices, but also by institutional cohesion and governance issues. I regret to say that this observation is even more valid in June 2011. Not for more than 60 years have we in Europe heard political exchanges between our countries of such rawness as those we have heard over the last months. The strains of finding a durable solution to the euro-area debt problem have reached such a degree that they look today as if they might overstress the very core principles of the EU – the four freedoms, solidarity and the rule of law. Let us hope not.

In analysing these events, Bruegel has sought to consolidate its role as a skilled and trusted participant in European economic policymaking, and the think tank to whom Europe's leaders turn for dispassionate, fact-based investigation and fresh thinking. But it is clear from international economic discourse and rankings that Bruegel is also enjoying increasing recognition outside Europe.

I am therefore proud that the Bruegel Board and General Assembly chose to re-elect me as Chairman of Bruegel in April this year. The new board is a very strong and diverse one, composed of members of the highest calibre drawn from European government, major corporations and civil society. I am confident that this remarkable group of individuals can and will take Bruegel successfully to the next stage of its development. A robust and very positive evaluation report in June 2010 from the independent task force reviewing Bruegel's performance over the period 2007-09 provides a solid launchpad for board and management to build on.

Whilst on the subject of Bruegel governance, I wish to welcome a new group in our midst, alongside the existing state and corporate member groups: our group of institutional members, currently made up of the European Investment Bank and the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Other public, non-governmental organisations have also expressed an interest in becoming members of Bruegel. We believe the establishment of the new institutional group is a healthy sign that Bruegel is acquiring ever-broader acknowledgement in the policymaking world.

To come to substance: Bruegel's core activities remain publications and events. While Bruegel last year published around thirty papers and organised over fifty events, we are on target in 2011 to achieve higher levels of output. Of course, quantity is not synonymous with quality, but I am pleased to note that Bruegel has achieved critical mass. Our annual outreach report for 2010 bears out this conclusion. In my view, this outreach report is of considerable value, as it charts Bruegel's growing 'demand-side' success.

I wish to end by thanking Bruegel's state, corporate and institutional members for their continuing support. More than for any other think tank, Bruegel with its highly interactive membership model is heavily reliant on input from its members for its success.

Leszek Balcerowicz

Director's introduction

BRUEGEL IS PROUD TO HAVE CONTRIBUTED TO EUROPEAN POLICY THINKING IN 2010.

Bruegel has entered its seventh year. Some will say it is still young for a think tank. And indeed it is, because research is painfully slow and because it takes time to build a reputation. But at the same time, we are older than Facebook, Twitter and other companies that are changing the world as we knew it. So it is time to stop pretending we are newborn. The coming of age has arrived.

A first expression of change can be found in our governance. The generation of the founding fathers and mothers has largely given way to a new one. Caio Koch-Weser, who had a key role in the creation of Bruegel, Peter Praet, who was instrumental in establishing it in Brussels, and Frank Dageard, who helped shaping its governance culture, have left the Board at the end of their second term. Also gone are Lydia Aguirre, Thomas Mirow, Jaroslaw Pietras and Adam Posen, who served over the last three years. A strong new Board was elected at the beginning of 2011, whose members are in the majority new to the Bruegel endeavour – at least in this capacity.

A second manifestation is the adoption of a three-year research programme and of four stable research areas. This is hardly a revolution: there has been a fair amount of continuity in our research agenda. But in addition, stable research areas bring a better ability to carry out research investment that will bear fruit in the future, more clarity in the relationship with our members, and an enhanced visibility of our identity and priorities. These research areas – European macroeconomics, global economics, financial regulation, and competition, innovation and sustainable growth – are not immutable. But they are expected to evolve only slowly. The combination of stability in the research investment and flexibility in the choice of topics is actually a feature of Bruegel's research strategy.

For more than a year now, the sovereign crises in the euro area and the re-examination of its governance have given much prominence to the first area. Macroeconomics ought to be boring, as Mervyn King said of central banking. Unfortunately, it is not, and this is what has contributed to high demand for contributions by Bruegel scholars on European crisis management and reform. In difficult times, we have aimed at striking the right balance between innovativeness and do-ability. Papers by our scholars aim at redrawing the lines, but in a way that practical men and women still find of relevance for the solution of the issues they have to address in the real world.

These are not quiet times in the field of global economics either. On the contrary, topics such as global coordination and the reform of international monetary arrangements are high on the agenda after decades of intellectual and policy apathy. Bruegel from the outset has refused to focus exclusively on intra-European affairs and has been keen on contributing to the global policy discussion.

Has the dust settled in the field of financial regulation? Certainly, it is a less bruising field than in 2008-2009, when G20 heads of state and government were discussing the minutiae of liquidity ratios and the regulation of derivatives markets. But major policy choices remain ahead of us, while at the same time the initial post-crisis convergence of views has started receding in favour of more differentiated approaches. There is definitely a need for analyses and proposals that escape the usual biases.

Competition, innovation and sustainable growth, our fourth research area, is admittedly of a longer-term nature. But it is about no less than the shape of economic development in Europe and the regulatory policies that can influence it, be they in the field of energy policy, climate change, or digital Europe. At a time when Europe realises that the global crises have dramatically accelerated the shift of the centre of gravity of the global economy, improving economic performance while at the same time ensuring sustainability has become a major priority for the continent. It is to be hoped that as the urgency of fighting fires gradually abates, such structural dimensions will become more and more important on the policymakers' agenda. It is our intention to contribute to putting the focus on them.

The third dimension of our coming of age is managerial. Bruegel in its first years benefitted from generous funding from its members, which meant it was able to take off and grow. It then started to broaden its resource base, especially through research grants. The time has now come when members are themselves facing serious revenue constraints, and Bruegel is perfectly aware that this affects members' funding capacity.

Performance and continued development in a more challenging environment involve learning and adaptation. Cost minimisation, resource diversification and prudent financial management are the order of the day. We are committed to delivering them in 2011 and beyond.

Jean Pisani-Ferry

Operational review by research area

A. GOVERNING THE NEW GLOBAL ECONOMY

Areas of focus:

Analyses of and proposals for G20 priorities; future global monetary arrangements; global financial architecture.

Research team:

Coordinator: André Sapir
Contributors: Ignazio Angeloni, Zsolt Darvas, Jean Pisani-Ferry and Garry Schinasi.

Research activities:

Research on Analyses of and proposals for G20 priorities was structured around the Bruegel G20 Monitor (G20M) (<http://www.bruegel.org/g20monitor.html>) which serves as a forum of discussion specifically dedicated to G20 issues. In 2010 the G20M hosted comments by scholars affiliated with Bruegel and by external experts. It accompanied the institutional calendar by timing its contributions around the main G20 events, such as summits and ministerial meetings. Bruegel Visiting Fellow Ignazio Angeloni was in charge of the G20 Monitor.

Bruegel also took part in the G20 discussions through bilateral contacts with, and contributions to the Korean presidency, participation in the Brookings Institute 'Think Tank 20' project (http://www.brookings.edu/reports/2010/1109_g20_summit.aspx), the organisation of various dedicated meetings (including a workshop on the relationship between European and G20 coordination, a Canada-Korea-France conference in Seoul in September 2010 and the Bruegel, CEPII – Centre d'études prospectives et d'informations internationales, ICRIER – Indian Council for Research on International Economic Relations, G20 conference in Delhi) and a series of publications (below). The Policy Brief 'Not all financial regulation is global' was presented by Nicolas Véron to the informal ECOFIN council in September 2010 as part of the ministers' preparations for the Seoul summit.

Research on Future global monetary arrangements was initiated in the framework of the French G20 Presidency through an EC funded research project 'Reform options for the global reserve currency system and their implications for the EU economy'. Jointly carried out by Bruegel and CEPII, the project started in September 2010 (end date: September 2011), involving a series of meetings and seminars. Early results were presented to the G20 deputies in Paris in January 2011.

Jean Pisani-Ferry was also appointed a member of the Council on International Monetary Reform recently created under the auspices of the Sloan Foundation. This Council is expected to issue its first report in October 2011.

Research on Global financial architecture is part of a joint Bruegel, Peterson Institute for International Economics (PIIE), 2010-2011 EC funded research project on 'The transatlantic relationship in an era of growing economic multipolarity'. As indicated below a joint Bruegel-PIIE conference was held at the Peterson institute in October 2010 on the occasion of the Fund-Bank Annual meeting and several papers resulted from it.

Overall, research on global economy issues helped to strengthen the Strategic Partnership between the German Marshall Fund (GMF) and Bruegel, which started in 2009 and covers the period 2009-2011. Both organisations benefit from deepening and developing the global and transatlantic dimensions of research and from the synergies resulting from linking the respective strengths of Bruegel and the GMF.

B. HEIGHTENED MACROECONOMIC CHALLENGES FOR EUROPE

Areas of focus:

The euro-area policy regime revisited; new growth models in central and eastern Europe; domestic economic and financial institutions

Research team:

Coordinator: Zsolt Darvas

Contributors: Jürgen von Hagen, Benedicta Marzinotto, Jean Pisani-Ferry and André Sapir.

Research activities:

The euro-area policy regime revisited was one of the most active and visible research areas in 2010, as Bruegel actively contributed to the debate on the evolution of the euro-area crisis and the consequent institutional changes through various publications, events, external and media contributions. Key publications in this area were the Blueprint 'A European mechanism for sovereign debt crisis resolution: a proposal', which set a record among Bruegel publications in terms of the number of downloads, and the Policy Brief 'The blue bond proposal', which also attracted wide attention.

The main publication of the research on New growth models in central and eastern Europe was the joint Bruegel and The Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (WIIW) report, 'Whither growth in central and eastern Europe? Policy lessons for an integrated Europe', written by an expert group of economists from various European countries. The launch of the report in Brussels was jointly organised with the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD). The report was further promoted with the assistance of the German Marshall Fund (GMF) in Bulgaria, Poland and Slovakia. Two related working papers have also been published in this area.

Domestic economic and financial institutions was examined through the study of the role of fiscal and monetary institutions in macroeconomic stability and budgetary control in CESEE countries in comparison with other OECD countries, a research project commissioned by the OECD. The research paper was presented at an OECD conference in September 2010 and published in 2011.

C. EUROPE'S QUEST FOR ECONOMIC PERFORMANCE

Area of focus:

The drivers of innovation

Research team:

Coordinator: Reinhilde Veugelers

Contributor: Bruno Van Pottelsberghe

The determinants of firm-level performance

Research team

Coordinator: Gianmarco Ottaviano

Contributors: Carlo Altomonte and Dalia Marin
Research activities

The project on Innovation eco-systems focused on the role of young innovative companies and their interactions with universities, large incumbent players, venture capital financiers and government agencies. This resulted in Policy Contributions and Policy Briefs, as well as external publications (listed below).

For the Globalisation of science, evidence was collected on trends and impact resulting in an external publication (below); presentations were made at several fora in Brussels. A first Policy Brief was published in 2011.

On the Governance of innovation, work took place on the design of EU innovation policies. A policy contribution was published following a presentation at a Belgian EU Presidency Conference. This contribution was also published externally and gave rise to an article in Nature.

Research in the area of Determinants of firm level performance were carried on under the EU funded project European Firms in the Global Economy (EFIGE) that is running from 2008 to 2012. EFIGE is a Collaborative Research Project funded by the 7th Framework Programme of the European Union, coordinated by Bruegel and the Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR), which looks at the international competitiveness of European firms on the basis of a new publicly-available firm-level survey carried out in parallel in seven EU countries linked to existing firm-level data sources. Five specific dimensions were analysed in 2010: size and productivity; organisation and innovation; internationalisation; financial constraints and skills. Within the year a large novel dataset on European firms was created to support future research. Preliminary findings gave rise to a policy brief and a forthcoming policy report. Further research resulted in ten working papers (listed below, EFIGE Working Papers).

D. COMPETITION AND REGULATION IN A MORE INTERVENTIONIST EUROPE

Areas of focus:

The new discussion on state intervention

Research team:

Coordinator: Reinhilde Veugelers.

Contributors: Philippe Aghion, André Sapir and Nicolas Véron

The trade-offs of financial regulatory reform

Research team

Coordinator: Nicolas Véron

Contributor: Zsolt Darvas, Benedicta Marzinotto, Garry Schinasi and Jakob von Weizsäcker.

Research activities

Research on The new discussion on state intervention was initiated in 2010 but did not give rise to many publications in the course of the year. Publications on industrial policy and on market leadership and technology leadership are scheduled for publication in 2011. Similarly a Blueprint on the future of the CAP is scheduled for 2011. The project on corporate champions was significantly delayed.

Within The trade-offs of financial regulatory reform, more than 10 publications were launched and a series of workshops and meetings took place, as indicated below. Additionally twelve seminars took place, among which the well established event series Finance Focus Breakfasts, coordinated by senior fellow Nicolas Véron, continues to serve market participants, policymakers and academics interested in financial market issues.

E. CLIMATE AND ENERGY IN THE POST-COPENHAGEN CONTEXT

Areas of focus

Drivers of green innovation and growth and their impact on European industry and international trade; Border Carbon Adjustments; Cross-country distributional effects

Research team

Coordinator: Georg Zachmann
Contributor: Philippe Aghion, Henrik Horn, André Sapir and Reinhilde Veugelers

Research activities

On green innovation, Reinhilde Veugelers published a paper on whether the EU Climate Change Policy mobilises innovation. The paper makes the point, that the lack of a predictable and high carbon price challenges the necessary investments in green innovation. In the special event series, three sessions were devoted to green innovation. Finally, a proposal for a project dealing with green innovation for the European research framework programme was prepared.

On the Cross-country distributional effects area, the policy brief 'Is European climate policy the new CAP?' was published in January 2011. The study made the point that the adverse economic effects of the ETS are largely compensated at the national level. Apart from these three main areas, work on the design of energy markets in the EU was undertaken, resulting in the Policy Brief "Power to the people of Europe"; a conference on supply security; an event on the interaction of networks as well a workshop on "smart grids". In the context of the upcoming infrastructure legislation and the move towards the completion of the internal market research has been conducted that will lead to further output in 2011.

Seven publications were launched and numerous of events took place. The special event series Energy and Climate Exchange continued throughout 2010 (listed below).

Coordinated by Georg Zachmann, this series of events is specially targeted at market participants, policymakers and academics interested in Climate and energy issues.

MEDIA AND COMMUNICATION

Media impact

Bruegel's presence in the press has improved considerably across all media during 2010. Editorial coverage increased by 61 percent with 1895 Bruegel mentions in the media in 2010, compared to 1176 in 2009.

Coverage in Bruegel's target media has increased by 65 percent in 2010, which reflects the additional effort made to reach targeted audiences. Similarly, Bruegel is prominent in the key international media (Financial Times, New York Times, International Herald Tribune, Wall Street Journal, The Economist and Time), where the number of mentions has grown by 92 percent to 129 mentions in the twelve months to 31 December 2010.

In terms of the type of articles published, there has been a huge increase in the number of opinion pieces, with 600 op-eds published in 2010 compared to 132 in 2009. The increase is mainly due to the use of a syndication service which provides a better distribution network. Of the total 600 opinion pieces published, 147 were placed in target media.

Looking at geographical spread Bruegel had an impressive presence in media across more than 75 countries in different regions, with a prominent presence in Europe from where 47% of the mentions come. More importantly, Bruegel has prominent presence in international media (ie. media with readership in more than one region), where the number of mentions increased by 92 percent to 248 in 2010 compared to 129 mentions the previous year.

Additionally Bruegel has continued improving its presence in the broadcast media with more than 100 interviews for both TV and radio. We have also defined a better focus on blogs which have proven to be very influential and Bruegel's presence on the online media and blogs has increased by 13 percent to 345, which shows a growth opportunity in this type of media.

Website

Bruegel's website is the backbone of Bruegel's dissemination strategy as it serves as a repository of all Bruegel publications, published and archived online. It also serves as a platform for the promotion of events and other activities. In 2010 there were 142,438 visits to the website from 95,015 unique visitors.

During 2010 Bruegel developed a new website launched in 2011, featuring a complete new design and better content architecture to meet the requirements of the growing number of items produced by Bruegel.

Looking at geographical spread, most of the visits came from Europe and the United States. However, the website recorded hits from more than 100 countries, reflecting the relevance of Bruegel's research beyond Europe and the US.

It is interesting to note that visits to the website peaked in November at 20,000 unique visits due to the interest generated by the launch of Bruegel Blueprint A European mechanism for sovereign debt crisis resolution: a proposal.

FUNDED RESEARCH PROJECTS

Bruegel now benefits from a number of funded research projects. These are funded by International or European institutions, as well as by private entities and cover activities such as research, project management and dissemination. Funded research projects at Bruegel represent around 15% of Bruegel's annual income.

Team Development

The following individuals joined Bruegel during 2010:

Christophe Gouardo, Research Assistant, joined Bruegel in July. He holds a Masters Degree in International and Development Economics from the University of Paris Dauphine, where he has also previously worked as a Research Assistant. His research interests include finance and development issues as well as fiscal policy.

Lucia Granelli, Research Assistant, joined Bruegel in September. She holds a Master's Degree in Economics from Sapienza University in Rome and an MA in European Economics from College of Europe in Bruges. She currently is a Ph.D. student in Economics at the Economics School of Louvain of the Louvain Academy (Belgium).

Mark Huberty, Visiting Fellow joined Bruegel in October. He is a doctoral candidate at the University of California, Berkeley, and a Research Associate at the Berkeley Roundtable on the International Economy. Prior to his doctoral work, Mark consulted for international firms at A.T. Kearney and Accenture. He holds degrees in Chemistry (Harvey Mudd College) and International Relations (The Johns Hopkins University - SAIS). His research covers the political economy of energy systems and the connection between climate change action, innovation, and economic growth.

Benedicta Marzinotto, Research Fellow, joined Bruegel in March. She is also a Lecturer in Political Economy at the University of Udine and Visiting Professor at the College of Europe (Natolin Campus). She holds an MSc and a PhD in European Political Economy from the London School of Economics. From 2004 to 2009, Benedicta was a Research Fellow in the International Economics Programme at Chatham House and has experience as a freelance political economic analyst. She has held visiting positions at the Free University of Berlin and at the University of Auckland. Her research for Bruegel focuses on EU macroeconomic developments, EU Institutions, finance and growth.

Anta Ndoye Faye, Research Assistant, joined Bruegel in August. She holds a Master degree in Econometrics and Financial Markets and a Magistère d'Economiste Statisticien from the University of Toulouse. She is currently a PhD student in Microeconometrics at BETA (Strasbourg) and at the Konstanz Doctoral School in Quantitative Economics and Finance. Before joining Bruegel, she worked as a Teaching and Research Assistant in Mathematics, Microeconomics, Econometrics and Statistics at the University of Strasbourg and the University of Toulouse. Her research interests are labour demand, production function theory and competitiveness.

Jörg Rocholl, Visiting Fellow, joined Bruegel in September. He is a professor at the European School of Management and Technology where he also holds the Ernst & Young Chair in Governance and Compliance and is Associate Dean of Faculty. He holds an MPhil and PhD from Columbia Business School and an Economics degree from Universität Witten/Herdecke in Germany. His research interests are in the areas of Corporate Finance, Corporate Governance, and Financial Intermediation.

Joan de Solà-Morales, Research Assistant, joined Bruegel in September. He holds an MSc in Competition and Market Regulation from the Barcelona Graduate School of Economics, jointly awarded by Universitat Pompeu Fabra (UPF) and Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona (UAB). He also holds a Licenciatura in Economics from UAB. His main research interests revolve around Competition Policy and Regulation.

Shahin Vallée, Visiting Fellow, joined Bruegel in November. He is an economist and strategist for BNP Paribas in London, focusing on Central and Eastern Europe, the Middle East and Africa (CEEMEA). He has graduate degrees in Economics and Public Policy from Sciences Po (Paris) and Columbia University (New York) and currently teaches at Sciences Po.

During the course of 2010 Bruegel also benefited from the work of Kenneth Iversen (Research Assistant, February-May). Bruegel is also grateful to all those who completed internships during 2010: Julian Boulanger, Andy Edgel, Anna Grabowska, Ela Ince, Sehaj Malik, Rosalba Nardelli, Dharini Parthasarathy, Marco Ricorda and Hendrik Worschech.

Bruegel owes a special thanks to departing Fellow Jakob von Weizsäcker. Jakob was present from Bruegel's birth and has been an invaluable member of the team. Apart from his insightful contribution to the intellectual life of Bruegel generally, Jakob's papers include the Blue Card proposal and the Blue/Red Bond proposal, both of which are still part of the mainstream EU policy discourse. We wish Jakob well in his new post of Head of Department at the Thüringen Ministry of Economics, Labour and Technology.

Governance

BRUEGEL'S GOVERNANCE FRAMEWORK IS DESIGNED TO ENSURE BOTH THE INDEPENDENCE OF ITS RESEARCH AND ITS RELEVANCE TO DIVERSE STAKEHOLDERS.

Bruegel is registered as a Belgian international non-profit association (Association Internationale Sans But Lucratif) under the number 0867636096, with registered office on Rue de la Charité 33, B-1210 Brussels. The basis for its governance is formed by its statute and bylaws, both of which can be downloaded from Bruegel's website.

Since 2010, the association has had three categories of member. State Members are governments of member states of the European Union that have chosen to join Bruegel; Corporate Members are international firms whose request for membership has been approved by Bruegel's Board; and Institutional Members currently include the European Investment Bank and the EBRD.

Each member appoints a Senior Contact Person and an Alternate, who represent the member in Bruegel's governance bodies. The details of Members' financial contributions are given in the 'Financials' section of this report.

The General Assembly is Bruegel's highest governing body, which consists of all members. The General Assembly is complemented by so called 'Groups' which are formed, respectively, by Bruegel's state and corporate members.

The General Administration Body (organe d'administration générale under Belgian law) is the Board, which is entrusted with broad decision-making powers, including senior recruitments and the research programme.

The Board has no responsibility for publications and policy positions. In 2010, the General Assembly met on 24 June for its statutory annual meeting and again on 25 November to agree subscription levels for 2011 and approve the budget. The Group of States and Group of Corporate Members also met on the same days.

Bruegel's Board met three times in 2010, on 21 January, 23 June and 2 November. It has two established sub-committees, the Audit Committee chaired by Helen Wallace and the Compensation Committee chaired by Leszek Balcerowicz.

The Scientific Council consists of eight internationally recognised economists, appointed by the Board for a three-year mandate. It advises Bruegel's Board and Director and assesses the scientific quality of Bruegel's output. the Scientific Council's chair is Giuseppe Bertola.

Bruegel's Research Programme is based on extensive consultation with Bruegel's members, including at least one plenary meeting of members' Senior Economists (in November), a draft programme is prepared by Bruegel's staff, sent to members for consultation, and proposed to the Board together with the members' feedback.

The Board then adopts a research programme. In 2010 Bruegel's Board, members and management put into place preparations for a 'twin peaks' model of Research Programme: the annual programme will now be supplemented by a medium-term research perspective, agreed by the same process. All of Bruegel's research programmes since 2006 can be downloaded from Bruegel's website.

Bruegel's public Statement on Research Integrity, adopted by the Board in May 2006, is also available on Bruegel's website. The statement sets rules for the avoidance of political, national or commercial conflicts of interest which could harm the integrity of Bruegel's research. Bruegel's researchers, including visiting fellows and senior staff, promise to abide by this statement when they sign contracts with Bruegel. They also make an annual declaration of interests to avoid any conflict of interest in the areas in which they work.

STATUTORY AUDITOR'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2010 to the General Assembly of the International Association to be held in June 2011

In accordance with the legal and statutory requirements, we report to you on the performance of the mandate of statutory auditor, which has been entrusted to us. This report contains our opinion on the true and fair view of the financial statements as well as the required additional statements and information.

Unqualified audit opinion on the financial statements

We have audited the financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2010, prepared in accordance with the financial reporting framework applicable in Belgium, which show a balance sheet total of €3,402,353.13 and a deficit for the year of €487,939.12.

Management is responsible for the preparation and the fair presentation of these financial statements. This responsibility includes: designing, implementing and maintaining internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error; selecting and applying appropriate accounting policies; and making accounting estimates that are reasonable in the circumstances.

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with the legal requirements and the Auditing Standards applicable in Belgium, as issued by the Institute of Registered Auditors. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

In accordance with the above-mentioned auditing standards, we considered the association's accounting system, as well as its internal control procedures. We have obtained from management and from the association's officials the explanations and information necessary for executing our audit procedures. We have examined, on a test basis, the evidence supporting the amounts included in the financial statements. We have assessed the appropriateness of accounting policies and the reasonableness of the significant accounting estimates made by the association as well as the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that these procedures provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2010 give a true and fair view of the association's assets and liabilities, its financial position and the results of its operations in accordance with the financial reporting framework applicable in Belgium.

Additional statements and information

The compliance by the international association with the Law of 27 June 1921 related to non profit associations, international not-for-profit associations and foundations is the responsibility of management.

Our responsibility is to supplement our report with the following additional statements (and information), which do not modify our audit opinion on the financial statements:

- Without prejudice to formal aspects of minor importance, the accounting records were maintained in accordance with the legal and regulatory requirements applicable in Belgium.
- There are no transactions undertaken or decisions taken in violation of the association's statutes or the Law of 27 June 1921 related to not-for-profit associations, international non profit associations and foundations that we have to report to you.
