Why is CMU a good thing?

- Overreliance on bank lending can be a bad thing
- Current inefficiencies/barriers impede growth
- Offer savers more choice

Why isn’t capital already pan-European?

- Accounting/insolvency regimes differ
- Taxation differences
- Fragmented market infrastructure
- Different levels of risk

‘Positive’ aspects of CMU

• Diversification away from banks positive; but no panacea
• Removing barriers will ease capital flight
• Do savers really want more risk?

Real challenges to acknowledge

• Genuine political will to harmonise critical frameworks?
• Will market infrastructure develop without subsidisation?
• Sovereign risk is pervasive; and it differs across EA
